New destinations, number of weekly flights increased

Expanding summer flight schedule 2025 at Hahn Airport

New destinations have been added to the 2025 summer flight schedule of TRIWO Hahn Airport. Since June, travel enthusiasts can now also fly twice a week from Hahn with Ryanair to Rijeka, Croatia's enchanting port city. The Irish airline is now also once again serving the destinations Zadar (Croatia), Chania (Crete, Greece) and Alghero (Italy), which are already known from summer 2024.

The total number of weekly connections increases by twelve in June to a total of 143 per week. Ryanair will be flying to the vacation classic Palma de Mallorca twelve times a week instead of eleven. The Irish airline is also connecting Hahn Airport with Girona in Spain five times a week instead of four. Air Arabia has increased its flights to Nador in Morocco from one to two per week.

In total, TRIWO Hahn Airport offers connections to a total of 46 warm-water and city destinations in the 2025 summer flight schedule.

"We are currently satisfied with the passenger development. The additional offers in our summer schedule are a strong signal that our positive trend will be continued," says Airport Managing Director Ruediger Franke. In May, the airport handled around 196,000 passengers - an increase of around 19 percent compared to the same month last year. Hahn Airport had already recorded an increase in passenger numbers of around 28 percent from January to April inclusive.
